NOTES:

1. Incorrect service number (PLX/X111175) is inscribed on the headstone; this has been reported to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.
2. Incorrect unit (45 Royal Marine Commando) is inscribed on the headstone; this has been reported to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.
3. Around the top of the headstone is inscribed the words 'Buried Near This Spot'. This means that there is a group of graves in the immediate area, but there is uncertainty as to who is buried in which. A second initial (N) is inscribed on the headstone; there is no record of a second forename in his service documents.
4. Marine NUTTALL does not appear on the 47 Royal Marine Commando Memorial in the Garden of Remembrance at the Royal Marines Museum. He was a Royal Marine Engineer Commando whose parent unit was HQ 4 Special Service Brigade. He was temporarily attached to 47 Royal Marine Commando from 21 September 1944. His headstone makes no reference to his parent unit.
5. The headstone is badly chipped at the edges; this has been reported to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.
6. Marine SMITH was killed on land (in France) but has no known grave.
7. Major TYNDALE-BISCOE was killed as a result of a Road Traffic Accident in the United Kingdom. If a serviceman died in his own country the next of kin had the choice of having the dead man buried either in a Commission war graves plot or in a family plot in a civil cemetery or churchyard. If they decided on a site other than a Commission plot, the next of kin retained ownership of the site and could decide on the type of marker.
8. The headstone is seriously weathered; this has been reported to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.
